I'm shocked the show even made it until 4 seasons. I wonder if the original cast will comment?

I think this could actually pave the way for something to happen with the original series. Whether its a reunion, a reboot, a movie, a podcast, and That's how I'd prefer it back. As a revival or movie seems very unlikely. Given the relationships between the leads.

Unfortunately, a revival series of the OG show unlike Gilmore Girls most likely won't happen with Shannen's failing health, the fact of how Rose h rejoining again which fans will just have to accept then.

All anyone can do is rewatch what's already there which people here have been doing for a number of years along with the project and commen

If ever a revival series did happen whether it was of a show or something else actors/actresses starred in one I can think of is Xena Warrior Princ has continued since the show ended.

Of course, Renee guest-starred in an episode of Lucy's New Zealand murder show series recently been proof of that naturally.

That would be the best thing.

Whether it is adult or children orientated I am unsure.

But it would the most diplomatic thing they could do . The special effects would be amazing

Another blessing with animation is budget. They can animate San Franscico better. Since the show was filmed in LA. Especially if they are using s

It really would. Plus, the budget wouldn't be a big issue like a live action series.

As for if it would be adult or children orientated. I'm not so sure myself. But as Too Much Coffee pointed out. It could be similar to some of the m

When I saw this I immediately thought Holly must be calling Netflix right now LOL. I'd watch a Power of Two show with Alyssa and Holly, maybe unlikely though

As a huge fan of OG Charmed, I tried to love this reboot with all my heart because I wanted to support Charmed in all its forms. The truth is that t

The pilot is really awkward (in about 40 minutes we are introduced to a long-lost sister; we meet the Whitelighter; the Charmed Ones discover th demon; the long-lost sister moves into the home of the mother who inexplicably abandoned her 28 years earlier and where she raised two other Charmed (the Source is introduced and vanquished; an Elder goes crazy for the Greater Good, like Gideon; this Elder has a sister who has been li of hybrid and for that reason was abandoned, like Paige) but I “appreciated” the effort the showrunners showed in Season 1 (they provided their interesting storylines such as the mystery about the mother's death or the abandonment of the first-born).
Since Season 2 they have shown us only garbage.

SPOILER ALERT

1) their Whitelighter's Darklighter (in this reboot every Whitelighter as an evil counterpart) INCENERATES the Book of Shadows, causing a portal entire Manor to Seattle, where they begin a new life, with secrets identities, an invisible home and without powers. After half a season, the Charr abilities (the middle sister used to freeze time now manipulates molecules... the youngest sister used to be an empath/telepath now sees the futur

2) the fantasy tones of season 1 give way to science fiction tones (e.g., the Charmed Ones' meeting place is no longer the attic but a Command Cen world...);

3) the Charmed Ones don’t have a private life;

4) the enemies are simply embarrassing (the Big Bad of Season 2 is a billionaire lady who captures and kills magical creatures to steal their powe

5) at the end of Season 2, the Charmed Ones are stricken with an ALLERGY (they could have at least called it a CURSE) that prevents them from g each other, their bodies are filled with burns....

6) Season 3 begins with a time jump--we don't know what happens in those months. All we know is that the sisters are no longer undercover (so t invisible (so people in Seattle are okay with houses appearing out of nowhere);

7) the allergy is cured only at the end of season 3 because the middle sister agrees to carry the baby of her future self...the sisters make a potion v revealed that the baby from the future will have the power of cell regeneration);

8) at the end of season 3 the Whitelighter who has spent all season to become mortal decides to get his powers back because the older sister (with future self who takes back her own pregnancy; the older sister dies hunting a very powerful creature all by herself;

even though the Charmed Ones had interacted continuously with the previous Guardian who appears in Season 4 also in the guise of a Guardian even talk about her dead sister because the actresses did not get along (this rumor was confirmed by a showrunner who in this way believes he f moments); the younger sister punched a passerby in the face and then confessed that she's angry all the time because she didn't predict her siste dumbest explanation); the Whitelighter gave up his powers (again) to become a Necrolighter (a creature that can talk to souls who have unfinish with) has no unfinished business so he can't talk to her; the new Charmed One is not a sister... she's a mortal who is cured of cancer by a transfus donated her cellular system when her father was dying of cancer)... thanks to this transfusion she became a Charmed One....

Added to all this is the fact that the cast cannot act. The lesbian sister (the middle one played by Melonie Diaz) is really bad-I don't understand ho between the actresses, and the writers are incapable of writing emotionally engaging stories.

This mythology might also be interesting but it completely contrasts with the mythology of OG Charmed Ones.

The series finale was today.

The last scene the sisters arrive at the Halliwell Manor and go in side with us ending the show as the OG ended every season.

They wouldve attempted to get the OGs back for a 5th season if they had it

It was nice to get a look at what the real house looks like today.

It's fun to imagine that since 2006 when the show ended Piper might have changed it up a bit in the past 16 years.
